Claiming to be a nephew of Peter Virgini, a Doukhobor leader of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, a wayfarer giving the name of Wasyl M. Virgini was held on a charge of vagrancy at Windsor, Ont., Saturday. Carrying a tendency of some sections of the Russian sect to the opposite extreme, he wore two overcoats, three pairs of trousers, two light coats, two vests and two sweaters. He was brought to police headquarters after seeking a meal ticket at the welfare bureau, and was found to be a nephew of Peter Virgini, the name of Joe Stern, and tobacco stand at Cranbrook, he one from Winnipeg made out to P. Starko. Typewritten character recommendations included one from a Buchanan, Sask., bank official.

Swift-Canadian Co. are giving a special demonstration for Pass retailers and employees at the Cosmopolitan hotel this evening, in the form of an illustrated talk.

Sincere regret is felt locally over the sudden fate of "Bill" Cameron, of Cranbrook, who met death on Sunday last when his car plunged into the Elk river about four miles west of Fernie. Bill was a former passenger train conductor between Lethbridge and Cranbrook and was very popular. Since returning to a drug store, he has been foremost in curling circles, and took a keen interest in sport generally. The remains will likely be laid to rest at Cranbrook tomorrow.

Things that never happen: The Enterprise uses the telephone about fifty times a day, calling up all possible sources of news in the Crow's Nest Pass for the benefit of its readers. The Enterprise representatives spend hours and hours on the street, hailing passing cars and stopping people who may be in a hurry and interested more in something else or somebody else—just for the sake of extracting news that they are unwilling to let loose. I. E. OLDFORD DIES

AT RED DEER

John Ellis Oldford, a native of Bonavista, Newfoundland, died suddenly at Red Deer on February the 14th, at the age of 88 years. From his early manhood he and his brothers operated a number of sailing vessels engaged in freighting and trading on the eastern coast of Newfoundland, and for two months in the summer engaged in the cod fishery on the coast of Labrador. For many years "Skipper" John Oldford and his pet vessel the "Glad Tidings" were known from Cape Chidley to St. John's for making some of the fastest runs ever made on that coast by sailing ships. In 1870 Mr. Oldford married Amy Reader, and to this union eleven children were born; four sons and seven daughters, of whom one son and six daughters survive him—Mrs. L. Hopkins, Edmonton; Mrs. Robt. McKee, Drumheller, both of whom were able to be present at the funeral; Mrs. T. A. McMann, Victoria; Mrs. H. Royle, Godrich, and Miss Viola Oldford, Prescott, Arizona, are the daughters, in addition to Mrs. Ronald Pye, and Mrs. J. E. C. Oldford is the surviving son.

In 1906 Mr. Oldford, realizing the opportunities to be found in a virgin country, moved with his wife and some of the members of his family to the newly-made Province of Alberta and purchased land near Penhold, which he, together with his two younger sons, farmed for some years.

In 1913 Mrs. Oldford died; in 1916 his son Leslie was killed in France. He then sold his farming interests and retired from active business. He made several extended visits to Newfoundland and Ontario, but the west always called him back. Of late years he has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Ronald Pye. Mr. Oldford, all through his life, was a member of the Methodist and later the United Church.

The remains were laid to rest at Red Deer on Sunday, February the 18th, Rev. J. L. Wright, formerly of Bellevue, officiating.

Mr. Oldford has some fifty descendants now living.

Myles Robinson has been appointed Hillcrest agent for the Calgary-Alberta. Myles is also representative of The Enterprise. Richard LaPlaca represents the Alberta at Bellevue, and R. Harmer and E. Beagan at Blairmore.

MARSH — WHEATLEY

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Calgary on Tuesday, February 13, when Miss Alice Wheatley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wheatley, ar., became the bride of Mr. Jack Marsh (son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Marsh, of Midlandvale), the contracting parties being well-known residents of Banff. The ceremony was solemnized in the Pro-Cathedral, Calgary, Rev. Dean Hagg officiating. Mrs. Pat Brewster and Mr. John Cooley supported the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Marsh will make their home in Banff, the groom being the manager of the Cascade Hotel. A wide circle of friends will wish them many years of wedded happiness. —Banff Crag and Canyon.

COMMISSION RULE

IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Friday, February 16th, 1934, was Newfoundland's last day as a self-governing dominion. Before night-fall her charter had been revoked; her legislature stood suspended and she was under the rule of a commission of seven men. The change took place without any flourish. The commissioners were sworn in by their chairman, Governor Sir David Murray Anderson. Then the assembly heard the deputy secretary of state read the letters patent giving power to the three Englishmen and three Newfoundlanders who form the commission. The letters patent became effective a few minutes later as the Governor read a Royal proclamation giving them force. Immediately, the commission took over control of the island's affairs, to govern until the country is rehabilitated.

GRANDSON OF W. BOND

SCOUT WINNER

Pendleton, Ore., recently had the distinction of receiving President Roosevelt's awards for all four of the Boy Scout troops at court of honor, placing Pendleton at the top of the list for all the cities represented in the Blue Mountain Council.

There are 48 troops in the council, and of these 22 qualified. The awards of red, white and blue silk and suitable for use with the troop flag, were made by R. H. Hayes, Blue Mountain Scout executive, at the Court of Honor meeting at the Pendleton high school auditorium.

The award is made to troops which show increase in membership, of which half the new members are 12 years old, and which show that 80 per cent of the boys re-register.

Individual Scout awards were made to 45 members, the highest being the Eagle Scout badge to Thomas Bond of Troop 42. Thomas Bond, senior, made the presentation to his son.

A fine programme of dramatizations and pageantry was presented, the entire occasion being in observance of Scout anniversary week. "Eight-Aves of a Scout" were shown. The stage was beautifully set in scenic effect, showing a log cabin, and "Mystic Voices" told of the "Enchanted Meadow." Awards were made in the same setting.

The test shipment of British Columbia apples for export to the Old Country via Canada's Atlantic ports arrived at Moncton, N.B., on February 19th over C.N.R., after having travelled across the continent. Six cars were immediately dispatched to Halifax and five cars to St. John. Some of the cars had special thermometers attached both inside and outside, and readings which were taken periodically showed that satisfactory temperatures were maintained inside the cars. Much depends on this initial consignment as, if it proves successful, it will in all probability develop into a regular export traffic during the winter season.

"The PRIVATE LIFE of HENRY VIII"

The King with Six Queens. What A Man! What A Show!

"If prosperity is returning, it is in spite of retarding, sadly retarding section," was the statement of Sir Henry Dwyer, former Dominion Finance Minister, speaking recently at Calgary, in the campaign of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce for sound public finance and the necessity of reducing federal, provincial and municipal costs.

From August 1933 to end of January 1934, 2760 vessels passed through the Panama Canal, paying tolls totalling $11,991,758.30, and in the same period of 1932, 2296 vessels passed through with toll payments of $10,655,208.34, according to an announcement by the United States War Department made recently. In Canada there are no tolls chargeable for passage of vessels through the canals of the Dominion, and the cost is borne by the Canadian tax-payer.

Jack Packer, minister of public works; Hon. J. Aschacher, minister of relief; Hon. Joe Krikosky, minister of light and fire (not forest); Hon. Albert J. Olson, minister of light, and Hon. A. Pagnuoco, minister of police, militia and defence. They are fortunate, indeed, in being able to hold portfolios for all. The prime minister is Rt. Hon. William King, mayor. Legislative sessions are held twice a month, at least.

The School Of Experience

People learn their most important and valuable lessons in the school of experience. It is a school that opens at birth and closes with death, and there are no vacation periods. We are passing through some experience at all times, and we are imbibing knowledge, learning something as a result. It may be that, like lessons learned in school and from books, we may forget some of the lessons of experience, for a time at any rate; even more frequently we may ignore and neglect the lessons which experience has taught us; nevertheless they have left their imprint upon our minds and have influenced our lives for weal or for woe.

It not infrequently happens that a short, sharp lesson is learned never to be forgotten from some one brief experience. Something enters our lives,—it may be a great sorrow or a great joy,—which then and there alters the whole course of our lives. On the other hand, it is often the case that in order that a lesson may be effectively learned, the experience which is teaching it may be greatly prolonged in order that it may be impressed upon us in the way that is necessary. And while individuals may learn a lesson from some experience very quickly, it is usually a much slower process for communities and nations to so learn and profit by experience.

Consider the present economic upheaval throughout the world, now continuing into its fifth or sixth year. Some people, no doubt, learned valuable lessons from it during the first twelve-month of its duration; others have learned as the years have gone by. Communities and nations have learned some lessons, and some have, of course, learned more and faster than others. All are still learning; learning perhaps a little more thoroughly now than they were two and three years ago. But it is quite evident that the nations have not yet grasped, or at any rate accepted, the great truths which the Great Depression has been teaching any more than they grasped, or accepted, the great truths which the Great War should have impressed upon all mankind.

Possibly it is because man has not yet learned the lessons, or at least accepted the teachings of the existing depressed economic state, that the depression is so greatly prolonged and still continues. There are certain lessons which the nations of mankind must learn, and not only learn but put their learning and knowledge into practical effect, before the depression will be overcome. The longer the depression continues the more forcibly it is teaching those lessons. And they are lessons being learned through a bitter experience, but it is the stupidity and unwillingness of man to learn obvious lessons that is prolonging that bitter experience.

The four years of death, horror, suffering and destruction of the Great War, together with its aftermath of trouble and losses, of which the present chaotic economic and financial situation is a part, have not taught the nations the full utility of war. Surely they appreciate the teachings of the Great War and its outcome, but they absolutely will not take the lesson to themselves, with the result that the world is trembling to-day on the very brink of another terrible war.

But while the nations may thus be much slower than individuals to learn lessons they should learn and profit by, people in all countries are learning and in time their thoughts and their influence will direct the nations. It is, of course, much more difficult to bring a whole group or nation to accept a great truth as the result of experience than it is to get a few individuals to accept it. Individuals are now in ever increasing numbers learning valuable lessons as a result of the experiences through which they are passing,—lessons which will not be easily forgotten but which will leave their impress on several generations to come. It will take time to translate their views into community and national life and action. That evolutionary process, nevertheless, is under way.

It is inevitable, too, that out of the experiences of a transition period such as the present, many ideas and theories will be advanced in all sincerity and seriousness as the solution of existing ills. It has always been so in all transition periods in the world's history, and it will probably continue to be so at all times of marked change. The mental processes of people are quickened by the experiences through which they are passing, but in numerous cases this merely results in the adoption of false or extreme ideas, and these, advanced as cure-alls for existing ills, are generally speaking, mutually destructive of the one of the other.

Clear thinking, therefore, is one of the most essential requirements in times like the present. Our experiences should teach us not to act hastily. They should recall to us that we made great mistakes in the mounting days of prosperity, and they should cut to us guard against committing other and equally great mistakes under the influence of a great depression. It is never wise to reach definite and far-reaching decisions beyond recall when we are either on the mountain peaks or at the bottom of the deep valleys.

In a word, in the school of experience we should learn that it is most important, vitally so, that we order and control our thinking powers, and apply them to the practical problems at hand in full realization of the fact that, while there is no short cut to betterment and perfection, betterment can be obtained by practical, unified effort, while what now may be regarded as ideal will, if and when realized, prove to be a stepping stone to a still nobler ideal.

Majority Would Not Work

New York city authorities the other day began an experiment to see just what percentage of street beggars are really "deserving cases." They arrested 63 panhandlers on the streets, investigated them, and offered jobs to those who wanted them. Seven of the 63 were delighted to get the jobs. The other 56 being men who preferred begging to working, immediately were sent to jail.

Statistics show that 16,000,000 homes in the United States are inadequately heated.

Millions Made By Forgery

But Science Has Done Much To Aid In Detection

Between the scientist and the forger's relentless battle of wits is being waged. And although the reformed crook likes telling the public that dishonesty does not pay, the forger is always one move ahead of the scientist. The Statistical Bureau of the League of Nations estimates that this lead costs society approximately twenty million dollars a year. That is the sum which forgers manage successfully to amass at the expense of the public and the State.

It is only of late years that science has been called upon to co-operate with the police in the detection of forgeries. This is especially true in England, for even to-day England has nothing to compare to the elaborately equipped laboratories which the French police have at their disposal in every important town.

Until quite recently it was still possible to get away with the easiest and clumsiest form of forgery, which consists in rubbing or scraping out a figure or a name, polishing the roughened surface, and writing in a higher figure or a different name. To-day chemists have discovered that by exposing the paper to iodine vapor, the condensed iodine permeates the laminated surface and forms a blot.

This simple but infallible test requires no special apparatus, and can easily be applied by anyone. In many foreign banks handling large numbers of "travellers' cheques," which are the forgers' happy hunting ground, cashiers are supplied with special iodine capsules which require only the heat of a match to give off sufficient vapour to test any cheque which they may have reason to suspect.

The activity of the forger is not confined to the "dead" cheque or banknote. The manufacture of spurious works of art and paintings was until recently, probably the most lucrative branch of crooked skillfulness. But it is in this field that science can be said at last to have won the upper hand. It art experts were to make full use of all the resources science has put at their disposal since the discovery of the X-ray, there need never be another faked painting on the market.

Exhibition Is Unusual

Many Interesting Exploration Relics Being Shown In London

The polar exhibition opened recently by the Royal United States Institution in London is attracting many visitors for the exhibits include exploration relics from the days of Frobenius and Cook to those of Scott and Shackleton. Among them is the camera which took the photographs of the south pole, Amundsen's flag and reckoning which told Scott that he had been forestalled, and the Union Jack which was hoisted at the pole. Another exhibit is the last stock of food carried by Scott and his companions, including the curry powder which Scott found gave him indigestion.

Native Flowers

Wider Use In Gardens Of Canada Is Urged

Wider use of native flowers in Canadian gardens was urged at Toronto at the closing session of the Ontario Horticultural Association's annual convention by Mr. J. A. Wilson, of Ottawa.

The Rocky Mountains are full of wild flowers that have not been cultivated, many of them being varieties that would be ideally qualified to prosper in a rocky, state abated.

The Canadian Way

The Detroit Free Press says: "The temperate but firm tone of the report of conditions at the Children's Aid Society Shelter at Windsor which has been made by the Deputy Minister of Public Welfare for Ontario is impressive. What a contrast to the average governmental investigation in this country! Where we get talk and headlines for the newspapers, the Canadians get sober judgment and vigorous action."

Urges Water Survey

Speaker Advocates Spending Public Money On Building Dams In Saskatchewan

Asserting this was not the time for large expenditures of public money on buildings of a non-productive nature, and commending the Saskatchewan government for its proposals contained in the speech from the throne to survey the provincial water situation, W. G. Ross, K.C., of Moose Jaw, urged the necessity of increasing the water surface of the province.

Mr. Ross was principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Saskatchewan branch of the Saskatchewan Fish and Game League.

Recent press despatches, Mr. Ross observed, indicated the federal government was considering a $50,000,000 works programme throughout the Dominion, of which Saskatchewan would get something less than $4,000,000. It also was intimated the money would be devoted to erection of public buildings. Again, it was said, was seeking some $3,000,000 alone for such purposes.

Yet, the speaker continued, the erection of these buildings simply added to the expense of government which already cost too much. Such works would help eastern industrial interests, but convey little benefit to Saskatchewan.

But, he stated, the Saskatchewan drought problem was one which affected the whole nation. By the poverty of the west, the east was deprived of lucrative markets. The real problem was not money, but something of immediate benefit to the west should be done.

Mr. Ross outlined a plan for the building of 16 dams in various parts of the province at a cost of $1,500,000, which would provide work for 100,000, which would be better for the climatic condition of the province and ultimately bring the greatest benefits to the residents of the province.

Service For Visitors

Police Interpreters Now Stationed On Streets In Paris

Police interpreters speaking four languages are now being used by the Paris police department in order to assist visitors. They are stationed at central points in Paris and are assisting in the various services. Each wears a badge bearing the colors of the nation whose language he speaks. Jean Chappie, recently dismissed Prefect of Police, has maintained a school of foreign languages at the Prefecture of Police which members of the force have been eligible to attend.

Fortune For Medical Science

The Mayo brothers have given a fortune to medical science because they believe riches in private hands often spell ruin for coming generations. Drs. William J. and Charles H. Dominion Drama Festival

Second Festival To Be Held In The Little Theatre, Ottawa

The second Dominion Drama Festival will be held in the Little Theatre, Ottawa, in the last week of April, when teams from all over the country will present plays in competition for the trophy presented by His Excellency, the Earl of Bessborough, governor general of Canada. During the weeks prior to the festival elimination contests are being held throughout Canada. Rupert Harvey, a distinguished English actor who was the adjudicator at the final competition in Ottawa last year is travelling across the Dominion acting as judge in the various eliminations.

Preliminary competitions are being held at Halifax, Saint John, Quebec, Halifax, Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, London, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton, Vancouver and other places. In many instances it has been found necessary, so great is the interest aroused to have eliminations prior even to those upon which Mr. Harvey will adjudicate.

From about 120 entrants it will be necessary for the adjudicator to select representatives of all the provinces to compete in the final competition at Ottawa. It is probable that the central committee of the festival will issue sufficient invitations to make a full week of performances in Ottawa.

J. T. Grein, one of the most distinguished figures in the English theatre and a well-known London critic, has been secured as the adjudicator at the final competition. The stimulus which has been given to the community drama by the inauguration of the festival by His Excellency, the Governor General of Canada, has exceeded the highest hopes. In almost every instance, and despite the difficulty of the times, the older organizations have largely increased memberships and here, there and everywhere new groups are being formed.

Favors Mild Inflation

Adoption of a modified system of codes similar to that used in the United States, mild inflation, raising of commodity prices, state control of business from a modifying and regulating point of view, and clear thinking as a means of returning Canada to an economic state of prosperity were advocated by Premier Brownlee in an address to a banquet of the Alberta provincial board of the Retail Merchants' Association.

Motorists Pay The Shot

Alberta motorists contributed $24.10 of every $100 cash receipts collected by Alberta in 1932-33, according to a statement issued by the Alberta Motor Association. Of this amount, $11.90 out of every $100 represented gasoline tax, while the balance was collected in registration and license fees.

Construction Program

Proposed Building Undertakings Will Stimulate Industry

Canada's recovery efforts will be strengthened in the early spring by a moderate programme of building and construction—"moderate" compared with the gigantic United States plan "because we have not their resources"—Major L. L. Anthes, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said in addressing the Canadian Hardware convention and exposition delegates at Toronto.

Major Anthes said the proposed building programme throughout the country would stimulate industry. "It is obvious that such a programme will help your business and it will help ours," he said. "It will give work to many thousands and put money in circulation."

"We believe that our export trade will continue to increase in 1934. We have turned an adverse balance into a favorable balance of very large proportions. Canadian exporting firms are putting forth extraordinary efforts to maintain and extend the markets for their goods in other countries. If their hopes are realized they will bring much business and, consequently, much employment to Canada during this year."

Vanishing Fortunes

American Millionaires Reduced To Five Thousand Since 1929

Large American fortunes are disappearing, remarks Mr. Samuel Cowther in the Cosmopolitan Magazine. The five thousand millionaires who today survive the thirty thousand of 1929 still have a good chance to lose their fortunes before they die, says the writer, who observes that only one sizeable fortune, the Astor estate, is more than a hundred years old—the three really large ones the Ford, Rockefeller and Mellon estates, being still in the first generation. To find any fortunes going back more than three hundred years, he says, one must turn to the Orient. Few of the Indian potentates know how old their fortunes are; some go back more than a thousand years. They keep their wealth in gold, silver and precious jewels.—Toronto Globe.

Ottawa.—Seven per cent. will be the maximum rate of interest allowed in the amendments to the Bank act, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance, announced in the house of commons. Banks charging a higher interest rate would be liable to fine not exceeding $500. Every officer of a bank who violated the maximum interest fixing clause would be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $100, the minister said.

"It will be recalled that much controversy has waged recently over the precise effect and the wisdom of the provision in the amendments to the act stipulating a maximum rate of interest," he remarked. "Experience in other countries has shown the attempt to restrict interest rates is usually ineffective and inexpedient in the public interest."

The Macmillan report had considered the choice laid between repealing the interest section in the bill as it now stood, or recasting this section so as to put it beyond doubt it was illegal to stipulate for more than seven per cent. in interest or discount. If recasting of the clause were decided upon the commission had suggested a penalty should be imposed for any infraction.

"After weighing the considerations pro and con," he continued, "the commission was unable to reach a unanimous agreement, although it might be well to point out that four members of the commission were of the opinion we should adopt the methods that had been found most effective in Great Britain of removing the limitation altogether. The fifth commissioner, however, contended that the statutory maximum still serves a useful purpose; that adequate reasons for repealing the section had not been adduced and that it ought to be retained. The present draft retains the statutory maximum, but provides for what we believe will be appropriate penalties in case of contravention."

Canada's Export Wheat Quota

Expected To Be In Vicinity Of 260,000,000 Bushels

Ottawa.—If the world wheat situation develops in accordance with the expectations of the farmers of the London wheat agreement last summer, Canada's export quota from the 1934-35 crops would be in the vicinity of 260,000,000 bushels, according to reliable information secured here. The Dominion's production for the crop year was 260,000,000 bushels.

The estimated quota for 1934-35 was arrived at by taking 26,000,000 as the average annual acreage sown in the 1931-32-33, and 17.24 as the fair average yield per acre based on the yield over the 10-year period ending with 1933. Reducing the total by the proposed 15 per cent. reduction in acreage, and subtracting the estimated domestic requirements of 117,000,000 bushels, would leave 263,000,000 bushels.

A State Of Mind

Psychology Rather Than Revolution For World's Ills

Washington.—The opinion that "psychology rather than revolution is the best instrument of adjustment" to new conditions throughout the world was expressed by Robert Cromie, editor of the Vancouver Sun. Addressing a luncheon in his honor at the National Press club following a tour of Italy, Russia, Germany and China, Mr. Cromie also took occasion to "congratulate your leaders on what they are trying to do to speed up these adjustments."

Canadian Destroyers At Trinidad Port Of Spain, Trinidad.—Four Canadian destroyers paid a surprise visit to Port of Spain and sailed after rushing a rating to hospital with a broken leg. He was C. Blakey of Esquimalt. It was understood Blakey, a 29-year-old petty officer, was injured boarding a Caracas-Laguayra train while on shore leave.

New Territorial Force For Erin Dublin, Irish Free State.—The ministry of defence announced a new territorial force would be established and its members would wear uniforms similar to those of the famous "Irish brigade" which Roger Casement, later hanged for treason, attempted to form in Germany for the 1916 Irish rebellion.

Given New Constitution

Self-Government For Ceylon With Safeguards

London.—Constitutional government in Ceylon stood trial in the house of commons, emerging battered but still holding the field, after the whole question of British government in the colonial empire had been thrashed out in debate.

A novel experiment in colonial autocracy, Ceylon was given a new constitution in July, 1931, getting self-government with safeguards—somewhat along the lines proposed for India. In the house, Sir Henry Page-Croft (Conservative), sharply attacked the scheme and demanded a parliamentary committee be appointed to inquire on the spot into its working.

Sir Henry's motion was finally talked out.

So far from the Ceylon constitution breaking down, it was working smoothly, satisfactorily and with goodwill, asserted Macdonald, said as acting colonial secretary.

Sir Henry protested against what he called "surrenderers." Since the war successive British governments had been too ready to abandon their own people overseas, he added. "Have we lost our backbone?" he demanded. "We are shedding territories without any mandate from their possessors."

Sir Nairne Sanderson, another diehard, said Ceylon was in the hands of politicians, and politicians were the cause of any ills. The British policy of conciliation in Ceylon was merely taken for weakness, he said.

"What are we afraid of," Sir Nairne asked the house. "Are we afraid to rule as we used to? Are we going to be bullied by the first person who comes? We can purchase peace far too dearly."

Moccasin Telegraph

Demented Indian Tied To Stake To Protect Family

Winnipeg.—The "moccasin telegraph" is swift but not always accurate. The central figure in a distorted story of death by torture was revealed as a kindly Indian who insisted on being tied to a stake to avoid the risk of harming his family in sudden fits of insanity. "His torturers" were neighborly braves who slept by his side and brought him food and drink.

The story of Gaganan, the Chipewyan, was told by Sergeant Percy Rose of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Early in December he was sent into the Lac Du Brochet country of northern Saskatchewan to investigate vague rumors a demented Indian had been tied to his sled and left to die in a recrudescence of "weteego" or witchcraft death. That story had spread all through the north. The sergeant found the Indian died of natural causes.

Nitrate Shipments

Opinion Expressed That Nitrates May Be Used In Making Medicines

Colon.—Chilean nitrate shipments to Europe so far this year were shown in official figures to be 700 per cent. greater than those during a like period in 1933.

Canal zone shippers remarked about the increase particularly in view of the troubled European situation, and the opinion was advanced that the nitrates may be used in making munitions, although Chilean officials declared the shipments were for agricultural purposes.

Only 2,238 tons of nitrate were shipped through the Panama Canal in January, 1933, to Europe, compared to 146,167 tons in January, 1934. Last February 33,250 tons were shipped.

B.C. Loggers Get Sympathy

Vancouver Mayor Approves Request For Permission To Hold Tag Day Vancouver.—"I'm with the strikers," declared Mayor L. D. Taylor in placing his approval on a request by striking British Columbia loggers for permission to hold a tag day in Vancouver.

"The industry has been taking advantage of an unemployment situation to have this work done cheaply," said his worship. "It is nothing more nor less than a racket, and the sooner it is stopped the better."

Japanese Air Disaster

Tokyo.—Two naval planes crashed into a mountainside in a heavy fog near Heijo, killing five Japanese flyers, the newspaper Asahi reported here. This brought to 12 the number of fatalities in a recent series of army and navy air disasters.

Discipline In Jails

Hon. O. L. McPherson Defends Administration Of Alberta Institution

Edmonton.—Defending the administration in provincial jails, Hon. O. L. McPherson, minister of public works, declared here in the Alberta legislature that there was a great need for strict discipline in the institutions.

His declaration came in answer to a series of articles, purportedly written by an ex-prisoner and appearing in an Edmonton newspaper.

"I do not uphold brutal treatment, nor is it sanctioned in these institutions, but there is the greatest necessity for the strictest form of discipline, otherwise there would be riots, outbreaks, bloodshed and death," asserted the minister.

Answering "black-hole" allegations, he said that between April 1, 1931, and March 1, 1933, only 91 out of 3,463 prisoners passing through Fort Saskatchewan jail named in the articles, received punishment in the form of solitary confinement for an average of 21 days each.

NEW CHAPTER IS OPENED IN THE STAVISKY CASE

Paris.—The slaying of a prominent judge and a police announcement that Serge Stavisky may have been an international spy opened new chapters in the sensational $40,000,000 Stavisky pawnshop bond swindle.

The body of Judge Albert Prince, who had worked on several financial scandals and was to have been a witness in the Stavisky investigation, was found, mutilated, on a railroad track near Dijon. He was bound, and a bloody knife was found nearby.

Authorities revealed they were probing the possibility that "Handsome Alex" Stavisky acted as an international spy, selling secret information to Germany and using women agents.

Stavisky was the founder of the Bayonne municipal pawnshop whose recent collapse led to accusations of irregularities in connection with it among high-placed officials, to the downfall of two French cabinets, and riots that cost hundreds of casualties. Stavisky, the friend of many authorities, was found dead when police closed in upon him in his Chamouny retreat.

Police declared that Judge Prince of the court of appeal, "had been trapped by a faked telephone call that his mother was ill in Dijon, that he left Paris in answer to the message, and that he had been slain en route under mysterious circumstances."

Countess Brassey

Passing Of Second Wife Of Earl Brassey In London

London.—The famous voyages on the yacht Sunbeam by the first Earl Brassey were recalled by the sudden death in London of Sybil, Countess Brassey, second wife of the earl who died in 1918. She was 75.

Lady Brassey, five years after her marriage, accompanied Lord Brassey on the Sunbeam to Australia in 1890 on his appointment as governor of Victoria, and they returned on the yacht in 1900. She was a stepmother of Lady Willingdon, wife of the former governor-general of Canada.

PRaises Newspapers

In a recent speech at Ottawa, Dr. R. W. Boyle, head of the physics department, National Research Council, referred to a good newspaper as a "veritable university and a world-embracing education." He added: "Anyone who has observed the press over a period of years will have seen a growth in idealism, accuracy, honour, truth and fairness."

Land Settlement Plan

Movement To Assist Settlers To Take Up Land In Saskatchewan

Regina.—The Saskatchewan government will shortly launch a large-scale land settlement scheme, acting in co-operation with the railway companies and the cities.

Through arrangements with the railway companies, settlers are taking up raw land and will be allowed a four-year period free of the payment of principle or interest. Partially improved land will be subject to a two-year term clear of payment. Concessions have been granted on passenger rates by the railroads.

Unanimous endorsement was accorded to the plan by the mayors of Regina, Saskatoon, North Battleford, Moose Jaw, Swift Current, Prince Albert and Weyburn.

Regina has already taken steps to come into line with the proposal. Applications from relief recipients to come under the scheme are now being received by officials of the Regina relief board to be submitted to the government for approval when that stage of the plan is reached.

Socialist Paper Seized

Chancellor Dollfus Organizing New Hope For Austrian Working Class

Vienna.—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfus took his first step toward organizing a new life for the Austrian working class by placing the director of the official news agency in charge of the seized Socialist party publishing house.

Through the former official Socialist organ, the Arbeiter Zeitung, re-modeled in conformity with the spirit of the new times, the government will endeavor to make it clear to workers "the government's Christian conviction makes it as a matter of principle the friend and protector of the working class."

Streamline Steam Locomotive

Ottawa.—A new model for a streamline steam locomotive has been made at the National Research laboratories. It has been so designed as to reduce the air resistance 35 per cent. and to lift the smoke from the stack clear of the cab. Particulars of its new locomotive were contained in report of the National Research council tabled in the house of commons.

Thirty-Hour Week Bill

Arbitrary Ruling Could Not Be Applied To U.S. Industry

Washington.—Hugh S. Johnson, who has asked a lot of questions of other persons during the last few months, answered a few himself, during the course of which he told a house of representatives committee that he thought an arbitrary 30-hour week could not be applied to industry in the United States.

He went to the labor committee early in its hearing and sat by while Gerard Swope, president of General Electric, voiced similar views against Chairman William Connery's 30-hour work week bill. Both he and Swope took the attitude that hour reduction should come through the more flexible operations of N.R.A. codes.

"I think something has got to be done very promptly to shorten hours and raise wages," Johnson said, however, "and it is my intention to do more."

He explained that further shortening of hours should be in proportion to the return of business, "not in one bite, but in two or three bites."

Drive Against Bootleggers

U.S. Government Brings New Weapon To Bear On Illicit Trading

Washington.—Urged on by President Roosevelt, the administration has undertaken an intensive drive against high liquor prices and bootleggers throughout the United States.

The government has brought a new weapon to bear on the bootlegger, one designed specifically to wreck his modernized system of pouring the illicit product into legal channels. Treasury officials said this was the new stamp tax, which became effective a fortnight ago.

Under this law, every liquor container must bear a stamp. Behind the stamp is an elaborate inspection system and the provision that if it is not used or is illegally used a long prison sentence awaits the offender.

GERMANY BACKS BRITISH PLAN FOR DISARMAMENT

Berlin.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler will join forces with Great Britain in a supreme effort to start a new movement for disarmament, it was reported here.

The chancellor, according to well-informed persons, approved a British memorandum "in principle" following a long and cordial conversation he had with Capt. Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, at the British embassy.

It was understood Herr Hitler decided to bury whatever doubts he is reported to have had about certain features of the proposed British plan in order to strengthen Capt. Eden's hand in the latter's negotiations with Premier Mussolini in Italy shortly.

Persons close to the situation wondered whether Mussolini will join in a possible front with London and Berlin against Paris on the question of armaments.

Conversations between the chancellor and Capt. Eden will continue, and it is understood that they will touch on the British proposal of postponing any action on air forces for two years.

This angle may prove a stumbling block to the general negotiations between the British arms expert and Hitler.

TRADE TREATY SOUGHT BETWEEN CANADA AND U.S.

Ottawa.—Negotiations aiming at a reciprocal trade arrangement between Canada and the United States moved a step forward when Prime Minister R. B. Bennett took the unusual course of reading to the house of commons the text of a statement issued to the press by United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull. This expressed the hope that at an early date steps might be taken looking to the completion of a trade agreement with Canada.

Following reports of the reciprocity debate in the house last week, Cordell Hull had issued a statement in the world and his attitude towards reciprocity, and it was this which the prime minister read to the house. The statement follows:

"Trade between the United States and Canada is larger in normal times than that between any other countries in the world and its attitude towards reciprocity, and it is natural that both countries should desire to restore the reciprocal flow of commodities to normal proportions. We hope to be in a position at an early date to take steps looking to the completion of a trade agreement with Canada which will further the interests of both countries."

Livestock Marketing

Charges Made Farmers Not Getting Square Deal

Winnipeg.—Charges that Manitoba farmers were not getting "a square deal" in the marketing of livestock were made in the Manitoba legislature as members discussed a resolution calling for an inquiry into price spread between the producer and consumer.

Doubts as to the efficiency of the present system were expressed by Hon. D. G. McKenzie, minister of agriculture, who endorsed the resolution introduced by Dr. J. A. Munn (Prog. Dufferin). Dr. Munn said such an inquiry would lend valuable assistance to a federal government committee appointed to carry out a Dominion-wide investigation.

"The public markets, Dr. Munn declared, were harassed with destruction through increased purchase by packers direct from farmers until today the packers controlled 62½ per cent. of the hog production of Canada. Public markets, he said, were the producers' only protection."

Burial Of Belgian King

Body Of King Albert Laid Away With Pomp Of Courtly Custom

Brussels.—The body of King Albert now lays in peace in the crypt of a little gray church near the Laeken royal castle. Albert was buried with the pomp of courtly custom. Between 30,000 and 40,000 Belgian war veterans who knew the dead king as their leader against the armies of Kaiser Wilhelm marched past the coffin before the procession started.

True to Belgian custom, no women took part in the ceremonies. The broken and widowed Queen Elizabeth and the future queen, Princess Astrid, remained in seclusion at Laeken Castle, while Crown Prince Leopold and his younger brother Charles followed their father's body afar.

Pass Liquor Amendment

Ottawa.—A bill to amend the Importation of Intoxicating Liquors act in such a way as to permit inter-provincial shipment of beer to agencies other than liquor commissions, provided they are vested with the right to sell intoxicating liquor by law, passed third reading in the house of commons.

Feed Shortage In Ontario

Toronto.—The Ontario department of agriculture report livestock in most counties of the province suffering as a result of a serious feed shortage. Feed grains are particularly short, although supplies of hay and other roughage are adequate in most sections.

Women's Franchise Defeated

Quebec.—Another six months' hold to a measure proposing women be given the right to vote in provincial elections was given in the Quebec legislative assembly by a vote of 52 to 25.

Toronto Daylight Saving

Toronto.—Daylight saving time from April 29 to September 29 was recommended for Toronto by the board of control.

HEIMWEHR TROOPS FOR VIENNA FIRING LINE

Trucksload of steel-helmeted and heavily-armed Heimwehr troops are shown speeding through Vienna on the way to battle against Socialists entrenched at strategic points in the city. Use of artillery became necessary later as troops found Socialists equipped with machine guns, grenades and rifles.

What Makes a Town?

A prosperous rural population which demands a community centre where may be established business, educational, religious and entertainment facilities. Where these flourish and are active it is safe to surmise that the people of that section realize and appreciate the value to them of such a centre.

What Maintains it?

The towns are largely maintained by the surrounding districts. But the organization, the direction, and to a great measure the upkeep, of the institutions in such towns are in the hands of the business interests, together with those directly and indirectly connected therewith. Without the active business and professional men to supervise and govern these public institutions and undertakings no town could thrive.

Who is Mainly Affected?

Every citizen either in or about a town should be concerned in seeing to it that they do their part in carrying on any good cause which may be promoted, either by financial or active support. Only in this way will any town prosper and develop as it should.

Publicity is Required.

In promotion work your local paper takes the leading part. It is ever the champion of worthy causes and philanthropic and patriotic undertakings. But to function properly, and fully carry out its natural prerogatives, it must in turn have the financial support of the community it serves. When needing advertising or printed matter always first think of

SAVE YOUR HEADS

Prince George, B.C.—It seems that bear grease is very popular on the Pacific coast as a cure for baldness. The Board of Trade of Prince George, which is midway between the big game country of Jasper National Park, Alberta, and the end of the C.N.R. line at Prince Rupert, British Columbia, sent out a circular stating that a party in Los Angeles was making inquiries for a regular supply of bear grease, which he proposed to use for hair tonic. The party in question was not particular whether the grease came from black, brown or grizzly bear.

It turns out, however, that there was already a well developed market for bear grease locally and shortly afterwards an advertisement appeared in the local newspaper which read as follows: "You do not need to send your bear grease to California. Local market will absorb all you have. Write to Box 93."

If a local guy who never spends a cent will call at our office, he can have the nickel he dropped here last week, provided he doesn't look for interest on it.

THE REMEDY

Editor Blairmore Enterprise.

Dear Sir: Your editorial in last issue made a great impression on me and I beg to submit a remedy for world chaos, something to divert single-track minds from the inevitableness of war as broadcasted by the old "Die-Hards" of Europe. Our brothers on 'tether side the herring pond are likely to finish up like the Kilkenny cats, who ate each other fur and all. Let's turn our attention to Home Policy, then, and give "The Remedy" a "try-out," please. It boasts rhyme—if not reason!

Civilization slowly crumbling—
Thrones, save Peter's, lowly tumbling;
Politicians sorely stumbling—
In World a wilderness
Peace negotiations falling,
European nations bawling,
Mutual obligations stalling—
All a dreadful mess.

Progressives shouting "evolution!"
Aggressives spouting "revolution!"
Congress flouting their solution—
What's what? Nix. That's that!
Right wings stand for reconstruction;
Left wings band for grim destruction.

Both demand a world-wide ruction
Giving tit for tat.

Forbid we commit transgression
As the key to end depression.

We have here in our possession
Better means than that
Wake each soul with glad elation;
Stake a claim for veneration.

Make a gilt-edged speculation,
Invested in a hat!

Princes bid for coronation,
A special "bid" means adoration,
With splendid school-boys' approbation.

Buy a janitor's hat!
Let the rising generation
Bet on it for their vocation—
O fickle habit!

Get pop-eyed with admiration—
O! That janitor's hat!

Teach—persuade them—set in motion
Tactics made for their promotion.

With each grade give them a notion,
What if means—that hat!

Condition it as premier prize—
Envision it with goosy eyes.
Ambition counts, but not the size
Of a janitor's hat.

The White House rears a president;
In four short years his term is spent.

This fact appears a detriment—
O fickle habit!
If "have-been" presidents had known,

They'd leave that emprise alone,
Declining gilt, pretence and worn
A janitor's hat.

"Sic transit gloria mundi" grate-
Viciously humans all too late.
Pick of all tasks contemplate:
No whistle blows for that.

Wages stand manipulation,
Gauged and planned for stimulation.

Stage a grand congratulation
Wear a janitor's hat.

G. G. COOTE, M.P. TELLS OF
HAPPENINGS IN OTTAWA
HOUSE OF COMMONS

Ottawa, Feb. 15, 1934.

So much has happened during the last two weeks that I cannot begin to mention all the interesting things I would like to tell you about. I must first of all say how fortunate you are to be living in southern Alberta, where I understand, the crocuses are in bloom, rather than in Ottawa, where the thermometer this morning registered 30 below zero. A good many easterners give me a rather incredulous look when I tell them how mild it is in Alberta, however the elevator man seemed to believe me, as he said he was going to move.

I was away last week end and addressed a group of students of one of Canada's eastern universities. It is a very interesting experience to address a body of university students at such a time as this. One young man who expects to graduate as a civil engineer this year, told me that there were probably about a thousand men who would like to receive their degrees as civil engineers this year, from the various universities in Canada, and there were practically no jobs in sight for them. The men in this particular profession are all hoping that the construction of the St. Lawrence waterway may be started this year, as that would of course provide work for a lot of engineers.

These students were nearly all enthusiastic supporters of my resolution, asking for the inauguration of a programme of public works to furnish employment instead of doles for those now unemployed. They realize that the carrying out of such a programme would furnish jobs for many of them and if some such plan is not undertaken there is not much chance of employment for them when university life is over.

Most of the time of parliament so far has been taken up with the debate on the speech from the throne and the amendment of Hon. Mr. King expressing want of confidence in the government. The debate has taken up a lot of time, and has not solved any problems. It did of course give the private members an opportunity of telling parliament and the cabinet just what the particular problems of their people were and what they thought should be done about it. A member is at liberty to discuss what is in the speech and what he thinks ought to be in it, so the field is wide open.

I did have a speech of my own prepared for the debate. I wanted to tell the government that we should have a National Recovery Plan for Canada, and some of the things that should be in the plan. I don't believe in letting the people of the United States do all the recovery work for us. However, my turn did not come till late Thursday night and had I insisted on speaking then, as of course I had a right to do, the house could not have had the final vote that night, the debate would then go over till next week. By that time, a dozen other members might decide to speak, so I thought it would be better to refrain from speaking, get the vote over and allow parliament to get on with the other business of the session. As I was away from the house on Monday, I was paired with one of the Conservative members on any vote on which I would be on the opposite side of the question. On Tuesday my Conservative friend was sick, so I felt obliged to pair with him that day. The vote on Mr. King's amendment came that night, so I was recorded as having paired with him on that vote. The net result of the vote, or the government's majority being the same as if we both had voted.

As I feel limited both as to time and space, I shall refer only to two speeches made during the past week—one by Mr. Stitt, Conservative from Selkirk, Manitoba, and one by Hon. Mr. Euler, former minister of National Revenue, a Liberal from Kitchener, Ontario. Mr. Stitt was speaking on my resolution asking for a programme of public works to be financed by a direct issue of dominion notes. He started off by saying that when he was nominated, he told the electors assembled "that if the time came in the house of commons when I believed the interests of my country were in conflict with those of my party, my country would get my vote." He said he could see no reason why the government could not accept the resolution.

In speaking about money he said: "I want to say right here in this house, that I believe that the kind of preaching of sound money that we have had in this country is wholly unsound. It has been sweet soundness for the receivers of interest, but it has meant fury for the masses of Canada, there is no doubt about that." He stressed the need of reducing the burden of taxation and suggested that the best means of accomplishing this was to lower interest rates on all outstanding money obligations. He urged an amendment to the interest net to provide that all interest rates contracted for and payable in Canada are to be reduced by 33 and a third per cent. He pointed out that because of the drop in the price of wheat and other commodities, it took in many cases, three times as much of a farmer's production to pay the interest on a debt as it did in 1926. He said: "A nominal rate of interest of eight per cent in 1926 becomes twenty-four per cent when based upon present day purchasing power. That is usury. When we talk about the sanctity of contracts and when we sanctify nominal rates in interest, we forget that what looked like a reasonable contract in 1926 has become a slave pact in 1933."

In effect, he warned the government that if they did not formulate a more humane policy with regard to money, they would deserve to be defeated.

The whole house listened attentively after "Jimmy" Stitt, as he is affectionately referred to by his friends, got going. It was a treat to listen to him telling how when he was a soldier in Flanders, there was a huge gun that used to go off periodically; it exploded at a cost of $1400 for each shot. He said as he listened to this gun, he used to wonder whether the time would ever come when he would have $1400 to complete his education. That opportunity afterwards came, he completed his education, entered the lawyers profession and is now a member of parliament, speaking courageously in behalf of the people of his constituency.

Mr. Euler stressed the need of measures to reduce the spread between wages of capital and wages of labor. He said that in his opinion, the government bond holders were the only class who escaped loss in the last three years and urged a refunding of the entire dominion debt at a rate of three per cent.

He said it was a reflection on Christianization, to say nothing about Christianity, that in a country such as this, that produces so much food and everything necessary for an abundant life, there should be in this twentieth century a million and a half people on public relief.

He said: "Where there is no vision the people perish," and closed by urging the government to abandon a policy of drift and proceed courageously to initiate policies to lead us out of the desperate position we are in now.

We are somewhat used to speeches of that nature from the U.F.A. and Labor members, but coming from Mr. Stitt, Euler and others of both the older parties, they indicate the extent to which members are being stirred by the existing economic conditions.

If time and space permitted, I should tell you something about the various resolutions introduced by private members. I will merely mention three of them. One of them, by Mr. Irvine, asked for consideration by the government of the advisability of nationalizing life insurance. Miss Macphail's resolution asking for

FROM THE PRESS GALLERY

(After J. J. Bowen had spoken for one hour and forty-two minutes)

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when certain members rise,
Of a rambling speech belies the fire
In their eyes.
We, the humble scribbles have a small request to make—
That the House provide some means of keeping us awake!

We scribbles who toss around the pen and ink,
Find talk so dry—woe-fain would have a drink.

These words and woolly speeches get our goat,
The speakers, Sir, will never get our vote.

Unless, perchance, they change their tune
In blousing ways.

And buy a drink, one of these bloody days.

Oh, Mr. Speaker, we are getting full
Of hide and horn and hoof and hay—
And in these days of hardship and of haste
Why let massed inspiration go to waste?

Here we've been sent at very great expense
To make the Session's doings read like sense.

But what poor reader wants to be enduring
A treatise upon shearing—or manuring?

It fills us more and more with irritation
As all this talk goes on of irrigation;
Why don't they talk of beers and like-wise ales,
And things that have a kick? We're sick of fairy tales.

Perchance some guy might put upon the table
Something that bears a Scottish kind of label.

Our pop's not raised, but we assure you, will be
If only given the right supply of Gilbey's.

Or Johnny Walker—not the slightest doubt—
Is a pedestrian who'll stop us walking out.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a statuette. Meanwhile, Camilla, the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, is not to inherit money when she comes of age and is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Worth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the party, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Avis is stunned and Camilla's mother likewise. Camilla decides that she should leave the home of her adopted parents immediately and go to live with Rose, her sister, who is a clerk in a business house. They decide to take an apartment. Bowman and Weeks, an advertising agency, where Camilla has submitted some of her work, send for her and tell her they have a new account which requires unusual treatment of juvenile art. To Camilla's surprise she learns that the account is that of her foster father's company, which has decided on an extensive campaign to bolster up lagging business. After a conference with Mr. Bowman, Camilla decides to attempt the work. With ideas running riot in her head she goes home and spends the night sketching. In the morning, armed with her samples she sets out for the agency. The critics were enthusiastic about her work, and Mr. Weeks offers her a salary of $50.00 a week to start and a prospect of having it doubled. She goes to keep a dinner engagement with Peter.

(Now On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXII

Peter detected her electrified manner the moment he saw her, and thought he never had seen Camilla so lovely. He took both her hands in his, gently, and poured his love and adoration into her eyes with his gaze. "Camilla, I can't endure this—sweet agony of living without you any longer."

"Even the agony is sweet?" she asked.

"Yes, because I live every hour in the anticipation of seeing you again." She smiled into his eyes, happily. "Then our plan is a huge success. That is just the way I wanted it to be. Don't you see, dear, if I were with you always, there would be no sweet agony of anticipation? And that would be tragic—very tragic for us. Half of the joy of life is anticipation."

He sighed with resignation. "Why do I argue with you about coming to me when I know I can't take care of you?"

"We're not going to argue about it. Peter. That's all settled. Besides, tonight is a very special celebration. I can't wait another minute to tell you my secret, so let's go in and sit down where we can talk. Do you suppose we can get the same table we had on our wedding night? This occasion is almost as important."

"It must be important, if it makes you so beautiful." His eyes did not leave her face, as he tucked her hand into his arm and they entered through the gracious doorway of Charm Cottage again.

Camilla glanced up from the menu delightedly. "Here is the same special menu we had for our wedding dinner, Peter."

"Then that's what we're having. Okay?"

"It couldn't be better."

"Open special dinners," he said to the hovering waitress. "Now tell me," he folded his arms on the table and faced Camilla eagerly. "You have a position?"

"Oh, yes, but that isn't the best part of it," she exclaimed. "Let me begin at the very first and tell you everything."

He laughed agreement. "Surprises, thrills and all. It promises to be dramatic."

It was, he had to admit when she had finished. His heart swelled with pride for her success and ached a little with regret—not because he avoided her, but because she was so exquisite and precious that he wanted to claim his right to take care of her and spare her all the sordid demands and sacrifices which even so promising a future involved.

He knew that this sudden achievement flooded the whole world with a golden light for her, like the white-colored spotlights on the stage enhance soiled costumes, worn property and faulty makeup.

She had yet to learn that for every victory there is some defeat, for every joy some disappointment, for every triumph, for every task achieved endless hours of toil and anxiety. He knew that Camilla would meet these challenges gallantly, of course. But he wished that he might spare her any of the "disappointments" and "anxieties" for her only the sparkling gems of genius worth, sparing her the bitter disappointment of synthetic substitutes which prevailed their majority in everything that he longed to live.

Camilla deserved to be treasured like a precious jewel, herself, yet she belonged to him and he could not lift a finger to protect her from the slightest need or anxiety. Rather, he had added to these. A fierce determination burned within him while he watched her happy face. He would give his soul to keep her happy like that, always, he thought.

Mrs. Hoyt accepted the news of Camilla's position and her departure from her home with resigned cheerfulness. She had not gained her objective, but to her way of thinking, Camilla would live to see the day when she would regret her rash determination to be independent and master of her own destiny.

In Mrs. Hoyt's past experience, youth profited by the wisdom of its elders or repaid the consequences of its folly. But here was a mind that dwelt in its past in ancestors, sought registers, inherited fortunes and blue-blooded convictions.

Her mind obstinately denied what her eyes beheld; proud names made ignominious and supported by plectan worth, the rapid rise of a social order which recognized ability above class, established fortunes tottering by the hour while new ones of magic-beastlike growth replaced them, life that loved and laughed and snapped its fingers at smug convention.

She had been trying to fit a product of this modern age into the pattern of two generations before. No wonder she had failed to accomplish her purpose. Strange, that she had selected this child of foreign parentage to replace those denied her. Just another inconsistency of human conditions, that the beautiful little child had appealed so strongly to her motherless heart.

"I hope you won't think I am ungrateful if I leave you before the end of the summer?" Camilla inquired anxiously, after she had listened with calm patience to her foster mother's surprised comments upon her new position.

"But I don't see why you should. If you have to work in an office all day, it would be much easier for you to stay here until you are adjusted. For that matter, you need not leave here at all this year. We'd really like to have you with us, even if you are working for yourself." Her compromise was offered with more wisdom than she would have admitted to herself.

"That's very kind of you, but I prefer to do all the adjusting myself and have it over with. I really could not feel as if I were independent so long as I lived here with you, in such circumstances as my salary could not afford. Besides, Rose needs me for awhile. I believe we can do a lot for each other while I am waiting for Peter to become established."

Mrs. Hoyt sighed heavily. "I'm afraid, Camilla, that never will be. A man has to have more than ambition to succeed, and Peter's opportunities are so limited. I don't know why."

"Please, let's not go over all that again," Camilla entreated. "I know why I married Peter, and I'd marry him again, even if I thought he had no chance. But he has. He does have more than ambition. He has talent, which will win out sooner or later."

Mrs. Hoyt's griefed eyes still accused her gravely while she resumed her tolerant acceptance of the situation. "Just where do you propose to live, Camilla. I hope you will consider that you have been a Hoyt for most of your life." Already, she was reaching out tentacles into Camilla's future life, in an attempt to order it according to her desires, as she had done in the past.

"I can't very well consider anything except the total of mine and Rose's salaries," she protested. "After all, I'm not a very big person, so I've changed my position from that of a Hoyt, even before I became Camilla Anson. That is what I shall have to be—a working girl and the wife of a genius. I'll look for an apartment as near town as rents will permit, so that we can save time for house-keeping. Somewhere in the sixties or seventies, probably."

"But that's an impossible location," objected the horrified Mrs. Hoyt. "How, impossible?"

"Why—very common and unattractive. How could you endure living in such surroundings?"

"I don't expect to gratify my beauty-loving eyes for awhile. If we have a clean room in an agreeable atmosphere, it will do until we can afford better. They may be common, but we hope," she added optimistically, pulling a wide-brimmed Panama hat over her short black curls and tucking in the curious locks that persisted in peeping curiously into her face and shining eyes. "But I must hurry along and find such a place to-day, so we can get settled tomorrow, rest Sunday and be ready to work on Monday. I'll see you at dinner."

Petition Parliament For Right To Secede From Commonwealth

Unique in history of the British Empire will be the petition to the King and Imperial parliament setting forth the case for secession of the state of Western Australia from the Australian commonwealth.

This petition is now being considered and prepared for submission to the legislature of Western Australia. It follows the state-wide referendum of nearly a year ago when the voters registered a majority of almost two to one in favor of secession.

A special secession committee is also preparing a 300-word report on the question. The petition, when approved by the state legislature, will be forwarded to His Majesty and to the house of lords and house of commons in London.

Western Australia, with a population of 440,000 and area of 975,000 square miles, ascribes its acute financial difficulties to disabilities under the federal constitution. The state's desire for secession is increased by her geographical position, separated as she is from other parts of the commonwealth by a thousand miles of desert.

Little Helps For This Week

"I will be glad and rejoice in Thy mercy, for Thou hast considered my trouble. Thou has known my soul in adversity."—Psalm 31:7.

All by Thee is ordered, chosen, planned. Each drop that fills my daily cup. Thy hand Prescribes for illa none else can understand.

And all is known to Thee. —A. L. Newton.

God knows us through and through. Not the most secret thought we hide from ourselves is hidden from Him. As then we know ourselves through and through we come to see ourselves as God sees us, and then we can catch some little glimpse of His designs with us, how each ordering of His providence, each checking of our desires, each failure of our hopes is just fitted for us, and seeing something of our own spiritual state which others know not of, and of which till then we knew not. Until we come to this knowledge we must take all in faith, believing, although we know not, the goodness of God towards us. As we know ourselves, thus far know God—E. B. Pusey.

STAVELY SCHOOL GIRL WIELDS WICKED PEN

There is a school girl at Stavelly who wields a wicked pen when she sits herself up to write about the males. Last week there was an essay exercise in her room, and some liberty was allowed the scholars in the choice of their topics. This sophisticated sister (who prefers to remain anonymous to readers) chose to write about men, and the drops of her fountain pen formed the following on a sheet of foolscap:

"Men are what women marry. They have two hands, two feet, and sometimes two wives, but never more than one color or one idea at a time. Like Turkish cigarettes, they are all made of the same material; the only difference is, that some are more distinguished than others, generally speaking.

"They are divided into three classes; husbands, bachelors and widowers. The eligible man is a man of obstinacy, entirely surrounded by suspicion. Husbands are three varieties, prizes, surprises and booby consolation prizes.

"Making a good husband out of a man is one of the greatest arts known to civilization. It requires science, sculpture, commonsense, faith, hope and charity, the greatest of these being charity.

"They want to marry women just like their mothers, and they finally marry just the opposite. They spend the rest of their lives trying to make their wives like their mothers.

"It is a curious psychological fact that soft, fluffy, tender, violent-scented little things like women should enjoy being kissed by big, awkward, stub-chinned, tobacco-stained and bay-rummed things like men.

"If you flatter a man you frighten him to death, and if you don't you bore him to death. If you allow him to make love to you, he gets tired of you in the end; and if you don't, he gets tired of you in the beginning. If you believe everything he tells you, he thinks you are a fool; and if you don't, he thinks you are a cynic. If you wear gay colors, rouge and a startling hat, he hesitates to take you out; if you wear a brown toque and tailored suit, he takes you out and stares at some woman in gay colors, rouge and startling hat.

"If you are like him in his gaities and approve of his smoking, he swears you are driving him to the devil. If you are a clinging-vine type he doubts whether you have any t-t-ains, and if you are a modern advanced woman he doubts whether you have a heart. If you are silly, he longs for a bright mate. If you are brilliant, he longs for a playmate. If you are popular with other men, he is jealous; and if you are not, he hesitates to marry a wallflower. Dam the men, anyway!"
